Strategic Plan and Diversity Leadership

How does the firm's leadership communicate the importance of diversity to everyone at the firm?

That diversity is of great importance, especially in such an ethnically diverse location as the NYC metropolitan area, is a given in our firm. Formal communications on the topic are virtually never required, but if a situation arises that requires that it be addressed, this is accomplished by means of one-on-one meetings with the person(s) involved.

Who has primary responsibility for leading diversity initiatives at your firm?

Jeffrey and Dorothy Samel, Partners

Does your law firm currently have a diversity committee?

No

If yes, does the committee's representation include one or more members of the firm's management/executive committee (or equivalent)?

Not applicable

If yes, how many attorneys are on the committee, and in 2013, what was the total number of hours collectively spent by the committee in the furtherance of the firm's diversity initiatives?

Total attorneys on committee: [No response]

Total hours spent on diversity: [No response]

Does the committee and/or diversity leader establish and set goals or objectives consistent with management's priorities?

Yes

Has the firm undertaken a formal or informal diversity program or set of initiatives aimed at increasing the diversity of the firm?

Yes

If yes, is it formal or informal?

Informal

How often does the firm's management review the firm's diversity progress/results?

Does not review/measure progress/results

How is the firm's diversity committee and/or firm management held accountable for achieving results?

Our firm has always given a great deal of consideration during a hiring process to female and/or minority candidates, and in the past 20 years have hired approximately 30 attorneys who qualified in either/both category. At the present time, we do have a female trial attorney, as well as a female partner

Is your firm minority-owned or women-owned?

Yes

Retention and Professional Development

Please identify the specific steps you are taking to reduce the attrition rate of diverse attorneys.

- Develop and/or support internal employee affinity groups (e.g., networks within the firm for minorities, women, gay/lesbian attorneys, or individuals with disabilities)
- Increase/review compensation relative to competition
- Increase/improve current work/life programs
- Adopt dispute resolution process
- Succession plan includes emphasis on diversity and greater inclusion of non-white men and women in firm leadership
- Work with diverse attorneys to develop career advancement plans
- Introduce diverse attorneys to key clients, including to lead engagements
- Review work assignments and hours billed to key client matters to make sure diverse attorneys, particularly non-white attorneys (i.e., minority attorneys, for whom research indicates a greater inclusion problem), are not being excluded:
- Strengthen mentoring program for all attorneys
- Professional skills development program for all attorneys
- Provide a gender-neutral parental leave policy that covers adoptions
- Other (please specify)

Does your firm have part-time/flex-time policies that permit attorneys (male or female) to work alternative schedules?

Yes

Comments:

Attorneys are able to connect with their office desktop computers from home via a VPN line, so there is flexibility with regard to having to physically be in the office. This has proven to be valuable for attorneys who commute from a suburb, have a home/family issue that requires their presence at home, who are unable to travel to the office due to severe weather, and issue of that nature.

What impact, if any, will the decision to work part time have on an attorney's ability to make a partner, or if already a partner, to remain a partner at your firm?

Any such decision would be made based on the totality of the circumstances, with emphasis on the contributions made by (and expected to be made by) the individual attorney to the firm. Due to the small size of our firm, any such decisions require a great deal of care and thought, and do not lend themselves to any set protocol.

How many current equity partners have worked part time, exclusive of maternity/paternity leave or short-term disability?

[No response]

The Firm Says

During its existence, Jeffrey Samel & Partners has made ongoing efforts to hire and retain a staff (both professional and support staff) that reflects the enormous diversity of New York City and the surrounding areas. Our office has hired and mentored numerous young attorneys, including many women and minority group members, who subsequently left and went into practice on their own, joined larger firms, or embarked on different career paths.

As just a few examples, a young female associate left the firm and became a Special Agent for the FBI; a male Hispanic associate who was hired directly out of law school left and started his own, highly successful, practice; an African-American female associate left our office after giving birth to her first child and is now a partner in another firm; and a gay, African-American support staff member left to pursue a career in television news.

We have made every effort to provide every young associate we have hired with a supportive and collegial atmosphere, and have mentored all of them with the same care and attention. Economic and personal issues always factor into decisions to leave the firm, and some of them have included a spouse's change of work location, the special needs of a child or children, relocating to a suburb too distant for a daily commute, and things of that nature. We understand that the needs of our employees' families are paramount in their minds, and are supportive of their decisions, albeit with regret.

It is our hope that as the economy strengthens and we are able to attract new business, that we will be in a position to hire new associates, and will make every effort to attract female and/or minority candidates for any such positions that become available, both with regard to our professional staff, as well as to our support staff (which currently includes two African-American females and one Hispanic female who have been with us for many years).
