The Firm Says

Axinn is committed to creating an environment that draws upon the strength of the diversity of our workforce to achieve excellence in our practice areas and beyond. We recognize, respect and celebrate our differences so we can best serve clients and create a sense of teamwork within the firm. We endeavor to hire and retain employees who are dedicated, hardworking and have the entrepreneurial spirit that Axinn was founded upon. Our inclusive workplace environment supports our retention and promotion efforts through various programs such as our employee mentor program, professional development opportunities - both internally and externally - as well as the work distribution process that seeks to give fair and appropriate work across all skills levels.

Axinn's Diversity Committee actively contributes to promoting diversity and inclusion at the firm. For example, the Committee provides diversity-related programs as well as hosting gatherings in each office to learn more about diverse cultures and backgrounds. Axinn's Women Lawyers Affinity group provides a forum for the women associates, counsel, and partners at the firm to discuss a broad range of issues that affect them and their career paths, including developing business, networking, improving communication skills, succeeding in the law firm environment, and work-life balance. The group meets quarterly and brings together women (and often men too) from all three practice groups at the firm.

As a smaller, boutique firm focused on just three complementary practice areas, Axinn can provide higher-quality, more responsive service than larger, more generalized firms. Partners interact every day with the Associates and with each other so we know each team member's strengths. We offer both mid-year and year-end performance reviews and our smaller size and teams offer us the opportunity to provide real-time feedback to Associates regarding their work performance. This level of interaction allows Axinn to control quality in a way that larger firms simply cannot match.
